

'There are two types of leadership. One is where you go in front and lead from there. The other is: wait to see where people are going and then run round to the front and take over'

.....

▶ TEAM LEADERSHIP

There is an old saying that a camel is a horse designed by a committee or team. Without effective team leadership most teams will produce a distortion (camel) of their original intention (horse)

Teamwork and Teamworking are widely recognized as vital skills if a group of individuals is to achieve its full potential. There is a major difference, however, between working as a group of individuals doing similar jobs and working together as a team. This workshop will identify the elements which create a successful team and outline the necessary skills required to lead a winning team.

WHO IS IT FOR?

- It is an ideal workshop for the first-time team leader
- It is perfect for anyone faced with the task of creating and/or managing a team
- It is an essential workshop for the leader of an under-performing team

WHAT WILL IT COVER?

The workshop will consider the formation and development of a team and explore the contribution of the leader throughout the process. It will cover subjects such as:

- * What is a team?
- * The benefits of teams and teamworking
- * Behaviour in small groups
- * Team formation and development
- * The difference between groups and teams
- * Building support and trust within the team
- * Managing team conflict
- * Understanding team dynamics

COURSE DURATION:

3 DAYS

NUMBER OF PARTICIPANTS:

10 - 12

EQUIPMENT REQUIRED

This workshop can be delivered in the training room.

It can also be delivered as an outdoor experiential learning experience.